PLANS FOR WHITLEY BAY STACK AT SPANISH CITY CANCELLED BY DEVELOPERS

Plans to transform Whitley Bay's former Empress Ballroom into a STACK food, drink and entertainment venue have been dropped by the company behind the project.

The proposal would have brought the STACK concept to the historic building beside Spanish City, with street food, bars and live entertainment planned as part of its redevelopment.

But Danieli Group, which operates STACK venues across the region, has confirmed it will no longer pursue the Whitley Bay scheme. More inside.

TYNEMOUTH COUNCILLOR TOM BAILEY JOINS THE GREEN PARTY AFTER QUITING LABOUR

Tynemouth Ward Councillor Tom Bailey has announced that he is joining the Green Party, expanding the party's presence on North Tyneside Council alongside Green councillors Martin Osborne and Helen Bell.

Bailey was elected as a Labour councillor in May 2023 but has since been sitting as an Independent after leaving the party last month.

In a statement announcing his decision, Cllr Bailey highlighted his priorities for a "greener, cleaner, fairer" North Tyneside, including local environmental protection, safer streets, safe routes for children and revitalising town centres across Tynemouth, Whitley Bay and North Shields.

Speaking about his decision to join the Green Party, Cllr Bailey said: "North Shields, Tynemouth, and Whitley Bay deserve better. Whether it's protecting our local environment, safer streets for our kids, or real change in our town centres.

"Real leadership isn't just about political games; it's about working for the common good. It needs a new party bringing new energy and ideas. That's why, this week, I've joined the Green Party. Tynemouth has gone green, Whitley Bay has gone green, and North Shields has gone green - because our coast deserves better. Tynemouth, Whitley Bay, and North Shields deserve a greener, fairer, cleaner future."

Green councillors Martin Osborne and Helen Bell welcomed Cllr Bailey to the party saying: "We are delighted to welcome Tom to the Green Party group on North Tyneside Council. Tom has consistently demonstrated a deep commitment to standing up for local residents and protecting our coastal environment, particularly over the recent nurdle spill."

NEW CYCLE ROUTE PROPOSED BETWEEN FOXHUNTERS & WHITLEY BAY METRO

A new walking and cycling route linking Foxhunters Roundabout with Whitley Bay Metro Station could be created under plans being consulted on by North Tyneside Council.

The planned route would include a new segregated walking and cycling path between Foxhunters and Shaftesbury Crescent in Marden. Further improvements are proposed along Marden Road South, where a shared walking and cycling path would be created alongside a new signal controlled crossing.

The plans would also make use of quieter residential streets as part of the route, with existing paths widened where appropriate with the council saying the improvements are intended to make everyday journeys safer and easier, while improving access to Whitley Bay Metro Station.

North Tyneside Council has been allocated up to £30 million for transport improvemenets across the borough, but this proposal is not without its critics with Tynemouth councillor Tom Bailey saying “There’s significant issues with this project which I’ve previously asked to be fixed but sadly they haven’t.”

Residents can view the proposals and submit their views as part of a public consultation, which runs until Sunday 15 November.

STACK PULL OUT LEAVES WHITLEY BAY DEVELOPMENT IN DOUBT

Plans to turn Whitley Bay's former Empress Ballroom into a STACK food, drink and entertainment venue have been abandoned, despite planning permission being granted more than three years ago.

Danieli Group, which operates STACK venues across the region, has confirmed it will no longer pursue the proposed development beside Spanish City.

The scheme would have brought street food, bars and live entertainment to the site, with the promise of new jobs and investment for Whitley Bay.

Chief executive Neill Winch said the decision had not been taken lightly, pointing to development costs, delays in progressing through planning and legal requirements, and infrastructure considerations.

The withdrawal comes after Whitley Bay councillors wrote to the company in June seeking answers about the lack of progress.

Labour councillor Joe Kirwin said the decision was a major disappointment for the town, saying: "This is a real disappointment for the people of Whitley Bay. We had been promised jobs and investment in our town through STACK, only to be let down. The Empress Ballroom is a part of our town's history and I know despite this setback our Labour Council will make sure it's a part of our future too."

Independent councillor Judith Wallace STACK had previously indicated it was committed to the development. She acknowledged the pressures facing businesses, saying: "We're in a time of uncertainty, with inflation, high energy costs and taxes on jobs like increased employers' National Insurance: we don't have a business friendly government and therefore developments such as this get cancelled."

Green councillor Helen Bell said she had been happy to sign the June letter pushing for action, but described the delays as frustrating for both the community and the council.

"Whilst I am glad there is finally closure, it's been frustrating to see the community being strung along and everyone's time wasted, including the council's," she said.

NORTH SHIELDS SHOP WORKER BITTEN ATTEMPING TO STOP SHOP LIFTING - BEFORE TRYING TO ESCAPE POLICE ON A ROOF

A man was bitten whilst attempting to prevent shop lifting in a North Shields store on Thursday - before attempting to escape arrest by climbing onto the roof of a building.

A member of staff from Greggs was bitten on the hand when he attempted to stop a young male shop lifting. Witness say that the shop worker was left with "a cut on his hand, with blood coming out".

Three police officers were seen chasing a potential suspect through North Shields before the man was then spotted on the roof of a building on Saville Street West.

The surrounding streets were closed, with the fire brigade and a negotiater having attended the scene whilst a large crowd formed.

After around thirty minutes the man was removed from the roof and arrested.

The incident happened at the Greggs store on Bedford Street, North Shields at around 3:30pm on Thursday.

The incident comes on the back of hightened tensions in North Shields town centre with many retailers complaining about regular shop lifting and the lack of a police prescence.

North Shields Cllr Martin Osbourne has arranged a public meeting to address concerns and discuss a way forward.

The Edit is pushed through the doors of 1500 DIFFERENT homes in Tynemouth & Whitley Bay every week - If you want to receive it every week sign up for our FREE email version or pick up a print version from your nearest stockist.

NORTH SHIELDS COUNCILLOR ARRANGES PUBLIC MEETING AS ANTI SOCIAL BEHAVIOUR CONCERNS ESCALATE

North Shields councillor Martin Osborne is organising a public meeting to discuss concerns about anti-social behaviour in the town centre.

Martin says residents and local businesses have raised concerns about incidents becoming more frequent and serious over recent months, with videos shared on social media also affecting perceptions of the town.

The meeting will give residents and businesses the chance to share their experiences, hear from representatives of the authorities about what is being done, and discuss what more could be done to tackle the problem.

MONKSEATON GYM LOOKING FOR A HOME FOR NEW DEFIB

Monkseaton based SHF Gym have succesffully fundraised for more life saving equipment for the local area.

After another challenge the popular and community focussed gym have purchased another defibrillator and now asking for community suggestions for where to home it.

THE SAND PIPER PUB IN CULLERCOATS TO CLOSE THIS WEEK WITH DEMOLITION SET TO BEGIN

The Sandpiper in Cullercoats will close its doors for the final time this weekend, with the pub set to be demolished to make way for a major redevelopment of the site including a Tesco Express.

The pub has announced that it will cease trading after this weekend, with the keys being handed back on Monday for demolition work to begin.

The Sandpiper said the closure had come at shorter notice than expected, but added that the pub's five-and-a-half years had been "not too bad in the current climate".

It thanked its customers and staff for their support and said there would be a goodbye party on Saturday, with live music from Foot Tapper on Friday night.

The pub's closure forms part of an approved redevelopment of the Farringdon Road site. Planning permission was granted for the demolition of the existing pub and construction of a mixed use development featuring a retail unit, a drinking establishment with expanded food provision and 14 apartments.

The Sandpiper said: "It will be a sad day on Monday when we hand the keys back for the demolition to begin but we have had some great times and have memories that will last forever."

The closure has prompted locals to share memories of the pub, especially around the pubs heyday of the 1960s and 70s.

Concerns have been raised about the future retail occupier, saying that a Tesco Express is not needed with a Morrisons and a Sainsburys Local within a short distance.

WHITLEY BAY HMO WITHOUT PLANNING PERMISSION DOESN'T HAVE A LICENCE EITHER

A Whitley Bay HMO has been operating illegally without a HMO licence for more than two years.

Last week it was reported that the an eight bedroom HMO at 8 South Parade, Whitley Bay was converted from a guest house to an HMO without the required planning permission.

It has now been confirmed that the the property has also been operating illegally, without a licence to operate as an HMO and does not appear on the register of HMOs kept by North Tyneside Council.

Properties that are HMOs with more than five bedrooms sharing facilities are required by Law to have a licence to ensure tenant safety, prevent overcrowding and maintain minimum housing standards.

Owners who operate an unlicenced HMO are liable for enforcement action including prosecution, meaning potentially being banned from renting out properties and a fine of up to £40,000.

The Council say they maintain a register of licensed HMOs and undertakes a range of activities to identify properties that may require a licence but are operating without one. This includes reviewing complaints and service requests, analysing council tax and other internal data, and carrying out targeted investigations where intelligence suggests a property may be operating as an unlicensed HMO.

Where a property is found to require a licence but is operating without one, the Council will investigate and consider the most appropriate enforcement action. This may include requiring the owner or person managing the property to apply for a licence, and consideration to issuing financial penalties.

RESIDENTS ASKED FOR VIEW ON NEW HMO PLANNING RULES

North Tyneside Council is asking residents whether it should introduce tighter planning controls on Houses in Multiple Occupation (HMOs) in parts of the borough.

Under the current rules, a house can generally be converted into a small HMO for between three and six people without needing planing permission. The council is proposing to change that in selected areas, including the wards of North Shileds, Whitley Bay North and Cullercoats & Whitley Bay South. Tynemouth councillor Lewis Bartoli has already criticised the proposal as it sees Tynemouth excluded, which he says makes it more likely that developers will choose to place HMOs in Tynemouth as they'd not have to jump through additional planning loops.

If the proposals go ahead, anyone wanting to convert a property into a small HMO in those areas would first have to apply for planning permission.

The council says this would allow it to consider each proposal individually, including how many HMOs are already in the surrounding area and what impact another HMO could have.

The proposals however are reliant on the data on the HMO register being correct and ShoutAbout Local revealed earlier this week that a property on South Parade, Whitley Bay has been operating without an HMO licence for more than two years - and didn't appear on the counci's register.

The proposals are aimed at areas where there are already concentrations of HMOs, as well as areas where there are a higher number of properties that could potentially be converted in the future.

Importantly, the proposed changes would only apply to future conversions.

People who already own a small HMO would not suddenly have to apply for planning permission because of the new rules.

The consultation closes on 22 October. Further information and the opportunity to comment are available on Our North Tyneside Voice, the council's engagement portal.

Once the consultation closes, the council say they will review the responses and confirm whether the Direction will come into force from August 2027.

Among those out speaking to residents were councillors Willie Samuel, Paula Clough, Jane Shaw, Martin Murphy, Jim Montague, Janet Hunter, Peter Earley, Eddie Darke, Charlie Grey and Linda Darke as well as Mayor Karen Clark, Deputy Mayor Carl Johnson & Wallsend MP Mary Glindon.

They say the party continues to put a strong emphasis on doorstep campaigning and regular contact with residents across the borough.

282 SHOPLIFTING REPORTS ACROSS THE COAST IN AUGUST NEW FIGURES REVEAL

There were 282 reports of shoplifting across Whitley Bay, Tynemouth and North Shields during August, according to the latest figures from Northumbria Police.

Whitley Bay accounted for 144 of those reports, making shoplifting the most commonly reported crime in the town during the month.

A further 138 reports were recorded across the North Shields and Tynemouth policing area.

The figures show that shoplifting was the most commonly reported crime in Whitley Bay, ahead of anti-social behaviour and violence and sexual offences.

There were 131 reports of anti-social behaviour in Whitley Bay during August, alongside 75 reports of violence and sexual offences and 28 reports of public order offences.

Across North Shields and Tynemouth, violence and sexual offences was the most commonly reported category, with 156 reports.

Anti-social behaviour was the second most commonly reported category, with 142 reports, followed by shoplifting with 138.

The figures cover August 2026 and come from Northumbria Police's neighbourhood crime data.

NINE DAY CLOSURE ALONG COAST FOR METRO

A major nine day Metro closure will affect Monkseaton, Whitley Bay, Tynemouth, North Shields, Wallsend and Newcastle later this month.

Metro services between St James and Monkseaton will be suspended in both directions from Saturday 24 October until Sunday 1 November while major track and overhead line renewal work takes place.

Replacement buses will run throughout the closure, calling at or close to all affected Metro stations.

Nexus says the work will include the installation of new track and sleepers, the renewal of overhead line equipment, and track bed renewal between Walkergate and Wallsend. Station improvements, maintenance, structural inspections and other infrastructure work will also be carried out.

Around 1,500 metres of new rail will be installed between Walkergate and Wallsend, alongside the replacement of timber sleepers with the work taking place around the clock to make the most of the nine day closure.

Metro services are expected to return on the morning of Monday 2 November.

Nexus says the closure has been scheduled during the school half-term holidays to reduce the impact on commuters and take advantage of generally quieter roads for replacement bus services.

However, we understand the Tyne Bridge is also scheduled to be closed for that repair too - so you might be better staying at home!

NORTH SHIELDS DENTIST CELEBRATES MAJOR REFURBISHMENT OF ITS HISTORIC FISH QUAY HOME

A North Shields dental practice has celebrated the completion of a major refurbishment of its home on the Fish Quay.

Union Quay Dental welcomed patients, local businesses, friends, family and members of the wider community to an open evening at the newly transformed practice.

The practice is based inside the Grade II listed Richard Irvin Building, and the refurbishment has modernised the space while retaining the character of the historic building. Practice owners and dentists Jarlath McAteer and Jamie Dury hosted tours of the refurbished practice.

Jarlath said: "We honestly couldn't have asked for a better response. To see so many people come through the doors was fantastic and it was particularly special to see such a great mix of our existing clients, local businesses and neighbours, friends, family and people from the wider community.

Jamie added: "The response from local people and businesses has been incredible. We're really proud of what we've created here and the open evening gave us the chance to share it with the people who are going to be such an important part of Union Quay Dental's future.

The refurbishment forms part of wider plans to grow the practice, including developing its team, services and patient offering. Earlier this year, the practice said the investment included new surgeries, upgraded digital and clinical equipment and improvements to the working and patient areas.

Union Quay Dental says it also wants to strengthen its links with neighbouring businesses and organisations and play an active role in the local community.

NORTH TYNESIDE REFORM LEADER QUITS PARTY LEAVING OPPOSITON IN CHAOS

North Tyneside's Reform UK Leader Brian Smith has left the party & will now serve as an independent councillor.

There has been murmurs of discontent within Reform's local ranks for weeks, including rumours of a potential leadership challenge.

Smith was appointed leader of the group less than six months ago following the May elections.

Councillor John Johnson, Leader of North Tyneside Conservatives, said:

"Residents vote for candidates, but they also vote for the party and platform those candidates stand on.

"People are entitled to change their views, but when councillors change allegiance so soon after an election, residents are entitled to ask whether they still have the mandate they were elected on.

"While other groups deal with their internal divisions, the Conservative Group will remain focused on providing a serious, stable and constructive opposition and delivering for residents across North Tyneside."

A North Tyneside Labour Group spokesperson was equally unforgiving saying:

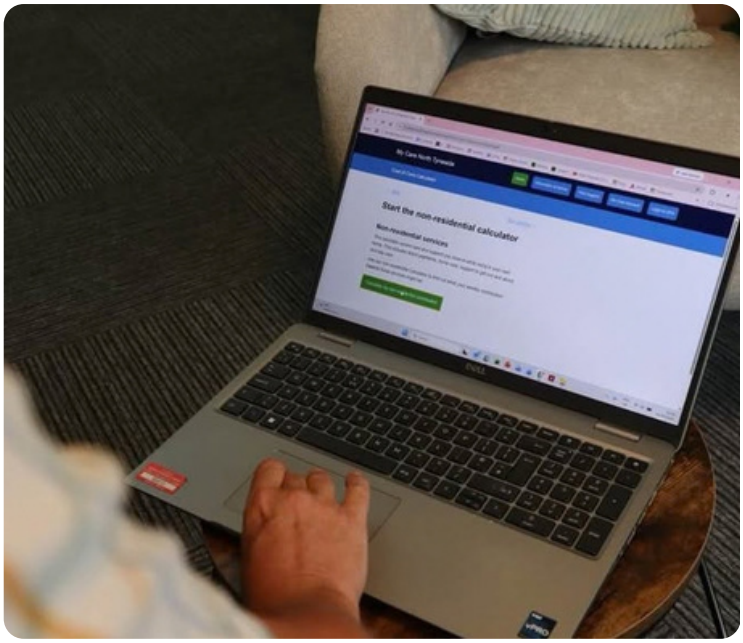

"Reform's problems are entirely of their own making. Their leader has walked out just months after being elected and they are now fighting among themselves instead of focusing on the people they were elected to represent. North Tyneside deserves better than this chaos.

"As for the Conservatives, the only reason none of their councillors has left is that nobody else would have them. This desperate attempt to insert themselves into Reform's collapse will fool no one."

Neither Reform UK or Brian Smith have released a public statement explaining the reasons behind the parting of ways, but it is understood that Reform are to hold a leadership election in the coming weeks to appoint a new leader.

Reform are currently the official opposition to Labour led North Tyneside holding ten seats, with the Conservative party holding eight.

NEW ONLINE TOOL LETS NORTH TYNESIDE RESIDENTS ESTIMATE THEIR CARE COSTS

People in North Tyneside can now use a new online calculator to find out how much they might have to pay towards the cost of social care.

The Cost of Care Calculator has been launched on North Tyneside Council's MyCare website and takes around 10 to 15 minutes to complete.

The calculator then produces an estimate of what they might be expected to pay. However, the council stresses that the result is only an estimate and does not replace a full financial assessment.

The tool is intended to help people understand the potential costs involved before discussing their care needs with a social care worker or making plans for support.

Residents can use the calculator more than once, save or print their results, and return to it if their financial circumstances change.

At the end of the process, users can also choose to securely share their information with the council's Financial Assessment Team. This is optional, although the council recommends it for people who have already discussed their care needs with a social care worker.

Councillor Janet Hunter, Cabinet Member for Adult Social Care, said:

“We know that thinking about care can feel overwhelming, especially when people are unsure about the costs involved. This new calculator gives residents a simple, secure way to get an early indication of what they might need to pay, so they can plan ahead with more confidence.”

The calculator is currently available for non residential care, with a version covering residential care expected to be introduced in early 2027.

The council's adult social care charging system takes account of people's care needs and their ability to contribute towards the cost of their support.

The calculator comes after North Tyneside Council reviewed its adult social care charging policy.

In February 2026, the council's Cabinet agreed changes intended to take account of people's individual financial circumstances and help ensure funding remains available for residents who cannot afford to pay for their own care.

shout about LOCAL BUSINESS CLUB

YOUR LOCAL BUSINESS NETWORK. STRONGER TOGETHER.

The ShoutAbout Local Business Club brings together local business owners to connect, collaborate and support each other – because when local businesses work together, we all grow.

Tuesday	Friday	Dough,	10:15am-
22nd	23rd	Whitley Bay	11:15am
SEPTEMBER	OCTOBER

The ShoutAbout Local Business Club is for local business owners who want to connect with other people running businesses in Tynemouth, Whitley Bay and the surrounding area.

Our meet ups are relaxed, informal and designed to be useful – a chance to meet other local business owners, share ideas, make connections and hopefully help each other out.

But we're now taking things a step further.

MEET. SHARE. SUPPORT. GROW.

STRONGER CONNECTIONS. STRONGER BUSINESSES. STRONGER LOCAL ECONOMY.
